Design an ADU for Long-Term Renters

For those that live in high-cost real estate markets or desirable tourist locations, building an ADU or studio in your backyard can provide a substantial source of supplemental income.

"The cash flow generated from rentals covers the mortgage and about one-half of my real estate taxes for the entire property (land, main house, and Studio Shed). So in terms of cash flow, I am now living without much cost," says Studio Shed client, Stuart Fishman.

Rental income received from listing your ADU or studio as an Airbnb can also cover the costs of your Studio Shed almost immediately if you opt to use one of our financing plans. Read the full blog to learn more about the ROI that can be achieved from your ADU or studio!

I shopped a lot of shed options before deciding on Studio-Shed. At one point I even considered a company out of England. I finally chose to go with Studio-Shed for several reasons 1) Their product is really well designed and built. 2) There were awesome to deal with and incredibly responsive to my barrage of questions. 3) We recently listed our house for sale and received well over asking. The studio-shed addition added at least 150K to the offer price. Stop considering it and just do it. With Covid still around having a great home office will pay off now and when you decide to sell.

From the first contact through the delivery and use the service and quality offered by Studio Shed was exceptional. The time to response was impressive and the level of detail in the product and description was excellent. I would recommend them (and have) to anyone. What is even better is the overall quality of materials and the overall product. I was lucky and had a friend who has a construction company hlep install but the instructions were clear and easy to follow and all parts were present.

Absolutely amazing product and service level. The transaction was seamless, delivery happened in 4 weeks which is INSANE given supply chain issues right now and the quality and customer service are amongst the best of any website or product I've ever used. Cannot recommend more. I'd give 6 stars if I could.
